

Communication:

In a recent report by PMI (Project Management Institute) it revealed that on an average, two in five projects do not meet the project's original goal or intent and one-half of those unsuccessful projects are related to ineffective communication. This report indicates the importance of proper communication in a team.

This week, we successfully integrated all modules together. I organized a meeting on Wednesday in order to test the game. We have developed a REST API using node.js for maintaining leaderboard. After discussion in meeting, we decided to deploy our API on Amazon AWS. Two team members were assigned the task of deploying the API on AWS. While deploying, they faced numerous issues which we discussed with each other via SLACK.

After the application was completely tested, we got a new idea of implementing "Lobbies" where 2 different players can play against each other. We implemented the new idea after discussing with each other via SLACK. On Saturday, we successfully developed, integrated and tested the new functionality.
